

FRANK R. PHISTER

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

THURSDAY EVENING, DEC. 22, 1881.

H. H. RIDDLEBERGER has been elected to the United States Senate by the Virginia Legislature.

The president has nominated Timothy O. Howe, to be Postmaster General. He is a Grant man and a stalwart of the most pronounced type.

SENATOR WILLIAMS' for the prevention of the exportation of diseased cattle and the spread of infectious or contagious diseases among domestic animals meets with no opposition in congress and is likely to become a law.

SEVENTEEN of the twenty-seven officers and crew of the steamship Bath City were picked up by a barque and have arrived at Liverpool. The steamer sprang a leak and sunk off the coast of New Foundland. The crew embarked in two boats one of which capsized drowning four men. The captain and five others subsequently died of cold. The survivors were exposed three days and nights.

THERE is much opposition in Congress to the restriction of silver coinage and it is very probable that a movement to provide for a still greater issue of silver dollars and certificates based on them, will receive the support of a majority of both houses, but not the two-thirds vote to pass it over the President's veto. A number of silver bills have been prepared for presentation at an early day.

ANOTHER convict in the hemp breaking department of the penitentiary this week cut off his hand to escape labor. This makes the eighth man in the prison who has maimed himself within a year. The Courier-Journal says: The miserable wretches work in a cloud of dust, the inhalation of which leads to all sorts of lung diseases. The legislative committee appointed to investigate the management of the penitentiary should end their junketing and get to work as soon as possible. Nothing short of inhumanity could cause such inhuman self-mutilation.

A PLAN is suggested at Cincinnati for breaking up the coal ring at that place. The Board of councilmen recommend the organization of a great coal company with two or three million of dollars capital the city to give the company free wharfage, on condition that the price of coal shall at no time exceed fixed figures. The objection urged against the scheme is the possibility that the company may become so powerful that it would at last control the council and get rid of its restriction. The arguments by which the plan is supported are that "the public has the same right to regulate the price of coal as that of water, or gas."

It is thought in Washington, that the action of the Tennessee Supreme Court in advancing the State debt cases on the calendar will take the debt question out of politics and lead to a speedy settlement of the matters at issue. It is believed by well informed Tennesseans that the decision of the court will sustain the action of the Democrats in the Legislature who stood up for the public credit of the State. But for this advancement of the cases they would not have been reached for two years and the debt question would have remained a bitter one during that time. If the action of the Legislature is pronounced valid the great bulk of the people of the State will be content to let the matter drop. Should this be the result, all talk of the Republicanizing of Tennessee will be utter foolishness.
